OVERVIEW

Varieties: Garnacha
Total Acres:
170 Acres

Monte Vicor is named after the Vicor Mountains that dominate the landscape and are home to much of the vineyards owned by to the fifth generation Langa vignerons, Juan and Cesar Langa Gonzalez, Owners of Bodega Langa Hermanos. It is arguably the most contemporary and best equipped Cellar in the Region, and the wines reflect this.

The 170 acres of vineyards are actually, spread over two Domains with completely different terroirs giving great flexibility and scope to produce wines with character and individuality. "Los Yermos" is located in the Sierra de Armantes at an elevation of 600M, with an annual rainfall of 17 inches. The vineyard looks like an oasis in the desert. Flat stony materials and clays dominate the soils. This is exclusively Garnacha territory.

The "El Coll" Domain is located close to the village of El Frasco, at an altitude of 2,500 ft, and annual rainfall of 17 inches. The climate is fresher, and with the influence of Mount Moncayo has a reliable soft breeze that extends hang time, and enhances the aromatic profile of the grapes. Plenty of pine, cherry and almond trees share the slopes on the deeper soils.

GARNACHA TINTA

Although perhaps best known internationally as the Grenache of the Rhone Valley in Southern France, Garnacha is almost certainly native to Spain. Characteristically, Garnacha wines have high alcohol, moderate colour, low tannins and are redolent of red fruits, but styles vary widely according to soils, climate and the age of the vines. Old vine Garnacha from poor soils and marginal climates can produce wines of considerable power and complexity.
